A Little Daughter

Of a Church of England minister cured of a distressing rash, by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mr. RICHARD BURNS, the well-known Druggist, McGill St., Montreal, P. Q., says: "I have used Ayer's Family Medicine for 40 years, and have heard nothing but good of it. I know of many performed by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, one in particular, being that of a little daughter of a Church of England minister. The child was literally covered from head to foot with a red and exceedingly troublesome rash, from which she had suffered for two or three years in spite of the best medical treatment available. Her father was in great distress about the case, and at my recommendation, at last began to administer Ayer's Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which effected a complete cure, much to her relief and her father's delight. I am sure, were he here today, he would testify in the strongest terms to the merits of

LETTER FROM PARIS.

Written by T. R. Congdon to his relatives and friends in America.

Having been up all night we were very sleepy and slept nearly all the afternoon. Sunday morning we arose at 9:30 somewhat rested but missed our "red" As I said breakfast was from 10 to 12 and it was about

12 when we were ready to go to the salon. Imagine our surprise when we were told that it was too late for breakfast. I showed my watch, it

said 11:50. "Ah, but don't you see"

said the steward, "we are losing 40

minutes every day, as we are traveling eastward you must set your watch

ahead 40 minutes every day at noon.

It is now 12:30." As we were the victims of a mistake we were duly

served with "dejeuner" as they call breakfast. We notice that holders

are in use this morning to hold the

dishes on the table. The edge of the holders are turned up two inches and

table for bottles, wine and other things such as vinegar, mustard, etc.

Wines are free on the French steamers.

This is Monday, a quiet Christmas.

The salon is decorated with evergreens

and two Christmas trees adorn the long table together with all the tableware. The table is covered with friends previous to sailing. According to custom I gave my steward the usual

Christmas "tip" and Ada and I went on deck for a promenade.

It is a cold and the sea calm.

It is too cold to use the chairs and we walk to keep warm. The third class passengers are aft and having a good time singing and dancing their native

dances. I met one of the engineers who speaks a few words of English and as I was to practice my French

I enter into conversation with him which he enjoys as well as myself. We have a dictionary and when we get

"cornered" we refer to our friend—the dictionary. From him I learn that the captain's salary is $7,000 a year

BRANERD, MINN

Recently during a heavy storm a vest containing a gold watch was lost in Bowery Bay. Ald. Smith last summer was washed ashore.

Clement Scott is a famous English dramatic critic, and his praise of Jim Corbett's acting is, doubtless, based on the latter's numerous "hits."

In Algeria there is a river of ink, two branches of the stream rising in ground impregnated with iron and gallic acid, the two principal ingredients of ink.

Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Charlemagne and Napoleon are regarded as having done more for the advancement of civilization than any other great soldiers.

The people of Lisbon are trying to prevent the cholera scare among foreign tourists by reporting her cholera cases as cholerae. That is an odd trick that won't work this season.

Fish balance themselves in water by the muscular contraction of the air bladders. At death the muscles relax and the air bladders expand with the result that the fish is thrown on one side and rises to the surface.

Zola says that heretofore his writings will be chaste. He has exposed the mire of life and now wishes to consider its beauties. In the language of ward politics, Zola is simply "plugging" for election to the French academy.

Considerable humor has, in the past, been created by the romantic fiction concerning a man who stole a saw mill. But recent publishing of freight trains in the woolly West brings one face to face with gigantic possibilities.

A woman has been drawn, by mistake, on a jury in Rockford, Ill., and insists on serving. Here's luck to the fair plunger, and may the unreasonable man on the jury finally come to her way of thinking.

Gen. Lew Wallace and Gen. Black went congress to name twenty-five "immortals." Why hoodoo twenty-five of the best men in American literature, science, humanitarianism and statesmanship by affixing such a fossil non-entire to them?

No wonder the ladies did not register very numerous in Kansas at the late municipal elections. The new ballot law of that state provides that the lower limbs of the voter, from the knee to the knees, must be visible from the outside of the voting booth.

Madame Hermann is to give a benefit next week in Chicago for the benefit of the family of Ben King, the Michigan poet and humorist author of "If I Should Die To-night." The benefit will be a "hummer," as orders for boxes and seats at a premium are coming in by every mail.

The chief element of weakness in the woman suffrage movement in New York is the fact that only a small percentage of the women of the state have taken judicial notice of it. The "cause" is at a disadvantage in that it has to play against spring tulle and tulle and tulle in dress goods.

Another man has been shot and killed for singing "After the Ball," and the jury called to investigate the affair returned a verdict of justifiable homicide. This may seem a desperate remedy, but it must be remembered that the disease is desperate as well.

That there is virtue in the Pasteur treatment for hydrophobia is fully demonstrated by the fact that last year 1,648 persons were treated for the disease, only six of whom died. These facts have set at rest the carping of the incredulous, and have proven a surprise to the scientific world.

In the opinion of many Senator Vanebo was the greatest man the senate has known since the war. He cultivated the clock rooms with enough good stories to make a book of. Geniality characterized his private life and he had almost no enemies. There are colonies of Carolina children who bear his name in token of the esteem in which their fathers held him.

A "gospel push cart," consisting of a small portable chapel, containing an organ and chairs, and made so that the side may be let down as a platform, is the latest religious invention. The invention is unfortunate on one account, because before long every candidate for office will go about with his pony and campaign cart, making cut lectures on every corner.

Money on call loans may now be obtained at lower rates than ever before since the war. The banks have more money than they can use—money that is unproductive and therefore a burden on them, and are glad to find borrowers at almost any rate of interest, provided the security for the principal is good. New York banks last week showed deposits of $5,314,700 as against loans of $1,832,800.

A woman in Huntington, Ind., caught a "peeping Tom" looking in at the windows of a neighbor's house one evening while the inmates were disrobing. Drawing a bead on him with her son's trusty air rifle she killed his anatomy full of hot slugs with little red feathers on them. Women are getting more and more resourceful every day, and for catching burglars and felling whow gazzers they are getting to be more than matches for the men.

Mrs. Clotilda Holmberg, who died in St. Paul, Minn., a few days ago, was the youngest of the eighteen children of Leonard von Holmberg, chief justice of the royal court of appeals of Bavaria, and her mother was a member of one of the oldest and best families of Germany. She went to St. Paul in 1861 and accumulated some property, but she lost it through illness and for some years past supported herself by peddling papers about the city.

A gold medal awarded to Frederick E. Loss of Philadelphia by the Photographic society of that city, for his achievements in colored photography, will be formally presented at a reception to be given him next Wednesday evening upon his return from London. Mr. Ives has received many honors from scientific bodies while abroad.

The system it will be remembered, consists of the use of three pictures of the same subject, obtained through glass of different colors and then exhibited through similar color screens in such way as to imitate them in one. "Composite heliography" is his name for it.

John Bandy's Body Found.
On Tuesday the body of a man was found in the woods five miles from Stony Brook station by E. M. Osterlund and his wife who were hunting cattle. Their attention was called to the place by a terrible stench, and an investigation showed them that some human being had been in the place. The body was found in a black gaiter suit overcoat had met his death in that secluded spot. The authorities were notified and Deputy Coroner Losey went to the scene on Wednesday morning accompanied by several persons from Stony Brook. The remains were found as indicated by Mr. Osterlund, but in a bad state of decomposition. The man had evidently been overcome by illness and had endeavored to make himself a bed as a quantity of pine boughs had been gathered and placed beside a stump near the place where the body was found. A Winchester rifle lay some feet away, and a revolver was in the coat pocket. Nothing was discovered on the body that would lead to identification, although it was the general opinion of those present that the remains were those of John Bandy who disappeared in December of last year from a hunting camp in that vicinity. An inquest was held and the following verdict rendered:
An inquest taken at E. M. Osterlund's on the 9th day of May, 1914, before A. E. Losey, deputy coroner of said county, upon viewing the body of an unknown hunter lying there dead, by the oaths of the jurors whose names are hereunto subscribed, who being sworn to inquire on behalf of the State of Minnesota, when, how and by what means the said unknown hunter came to his death, upon their oaths do say: That we, the jury, believe the above came to his death by wandering away from his camp and being overcome by cold was frozen to death; and we the jury believe him to be a hunter by the name of Bandy who came from Wheelock in this woods.
A. E. Losey, Deputy Coroner.
E. M. Osterlund, JOHN CARROLL, J. R. LYNN, JOE ELLIOTT.

Transcript.
Mrs. Sarah Holmes, wife of Stephen Holmes, died on Saturday last after an illness of some months of dropsy, aged 57 years. The funeral occurred on Sunday afternoon from the Methodist church, the services being conducted by Staff Capt. Blanche C. Cox, of the Salvation Army and Rev. Geo. West, after which the remains were interred in Evergreen cemetery.

What might have been a serious accident occurred on the ravine bridge Wednesday forenoon at which time Herman Casey, while riding his bicycle collided with Miss Mary Horihan, a sister of Mrs. W. H. Meekins. The accident was not one of carelessness, but unavoidable. The wind was blowing quite briskly, and a cloud of dust swept by just as Mr. Casey noticed the lady and both parties turned out the same way, the result being that Miss Horihan was knocked down and severely bruised.
"Count of Monte Cristo," the very name in dramatic, recalling the masterpiece of Dumas, a work probably richer in dramatic possibilities than any other creation in literature. To older theatre-goers it recalls the name of Focher in the title role of the dramatization of the book; to the present it suggests at once the name of an actor whose reputation and success in this character will go down in American stage history. James O'Neill is unequalled at the head of romantic actors on the stage to-day.
At the evangelical association, just closed at Kasson Corners, a mission was established at Duluth with Rev. J. M. Baiteger, of this city in charge. The gentleman will leave for his new field of labor on Wednesday next, and his farewell sermon to the Brainerd people will be preached on Sunday night. A very successful conference is reported by him $1830 having been raised for the Missionary fund, $1465 for the northwestern college fund. Mr. Baiteger is succeeded here by Rev. S. L. Staff, of St. Paul.

The day the body was discovered a party was being made up to go in search of him, his son having arrived on Monday to join the search.

John Bandy's Body Found.
On Tuesday the body of a man was found in the woods five miles from Stony Brook station by E. M. Osterlund and his wife who were hunting cattle. Their attention was called to the place by a terrible stench, and an investigation showed them that some human being clad in a black goatskin overcoat had met his death in that secluded spot. The authorities were notified and Deputy Coroner Losey went to the scene on Wednesday morning accompanied by several persons from Stony Brook. The remains were found as indicated by Mr. Osterlund, but in a bad state of decomposition. The man had evidently been overcome by illness and had endeavored to make himself a bed as a quantity of pine boughs had been gathered and placed beside a stump near the place where the body was found. A Winchester rifle lay some feet away, and a revolver was in the coat pocket. Nothing was discovered on the body that would lead to identification, although it was the general opinion of those present that the remains were those of John Bandy who disappeared in December of last year from a hunting camp in that vicinity. An inquest was held and the following verdict rendered:
An inquest taken at E. M. Osterlund's on the 9th day of May, 1894, before A. E. Losey, deputy coroner of said county, upon viewing the body of an unknown hunter lying there dead, by the oaths of the jurors whose names are hereunto subscribed, who being sworn to inquire on behalf of the State of Minnesota, when, how and by what means the said unknown hunter came to his death, upon their oaths do say: That we, the jury, believe the above came to his death by wandering away from his camp and being overcome by cold was frozen to death; and we the jury believe him to be a hunter by the name of Bandy who came from Wheelock into this woods.
A. E. Losey, Deputy Coroner.
JOHN CARROLL, J. R. LYNCH, JOE ELLIOTT.

J. E. Davis, a brother-in-law of Bandy's, went up to Stony Brook yesterday morning and had the body exhumed in order to identify the remains, and his examination proved beyond a doubt that the dead man was John Bandy. He recognized the far coat and the rubbers the man wore were a pair he had given Bandy. A peculiarly shaped whistle was also found which Mr. Davis had used many times. A peculiar formation of the teeth was looked for, Bandy having told Davis at one time that if he ever needed to be identified, his teeth would answer the purpose well, and at that time had him (Davis) examine them. This, if nothing else, proved the identity of the man. The remains were then re-buried where they will be allowed to remain a short time, and will then be removed to this city for a final resting place. The deceased was an old soldier.
The story of John Bandy's disappearance, published in this paper at the time, is that at the beginning of the deer season last fall, he left his family consisting of a wife and five children at home at Gull Lake, and in company with two neighbors went on a hunting expedition, the camp being located in the Stony Brook neighborhood. A day or so before the season closed Bandy borrowed one of his companion's guns, having none of his own and started out alone. He did not return that night, and as an agreement had been made to go home the next day the two remaining men packed up and started, thinking Bandy had gone on home ahead, hunting on his way down. As he did not return and the days lengthened into weeks, foul play was suspected by some while others thought he had left his family and gone to Dakota, but the discovery of Tuesday dispels any such theory, and as he was not healthy and was subject to sinking spells, it is evident that he was overcome and froze to death. His family have removed to Gray Eagle.
The day the body was discovered a party was being made up to go in search of him, his son having arrived on Monday to join the search.

Memorial Day.
Wednesday, May 30, will be observed as memorial day. Twenty-six years ago John A. Logan, Commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. inaugurated memorial day and by that we are directed that if other eyes grow dull, other hands slack and other hearts cold in solemn trust we shall keep it well as long as the light and warmth of life remains in us. His wishes and instruction have been faithfully obeyed and as your commander I call upon each and every one of you, my comrades, to again discharge this most solemn duty. Each year our lives grow shorter here while they lengthen on the other side. We have more graves to decorate and fewer comrades to discharge the duty. Realizing this, let us invite all the people and organization to participate with us in this service. In no better way can we teach the lessons of patriotism and prepare those who are to take our places for the high and responsible duties of American citizens.

A Famous P. y.
Of all the plays which have fascinated the theatre-going public of this country, during the past decade, few have attained the same popularity as the stirring romantic drama "Monte Cristo." This is not only due to the absorbing interest of Mr. Alexander Dumas' powerful story, but it is as much owing to the superb treatment that the chief character of Edmund Dantes has received at the hands of Mr. James O'Neill. It is now five years ago since he was last seen in that character in this city, although he has impersonated the famous role over ten years. The part of Edmund Dantes required an actor of unusual ability to portray it, owing to its complex nature. Whether as the rollicking, nimble sailor, or the prologue, the emaciated convict making his bold strike for liberty, the gentle voiced, and eyed priest, or the dignified Count of Monte Cristo, he is always equally effective. Of the three main characters of the play, into which Mr. Dumas changed his sailor lad, it is doubtful if any has exercised more fascination over the greater part of the public, than that of Bosconi. Mr. O'Neill's matchless acting of this priest has not only impressed itself indelibly upon the minds of the hot-potato, but has aroused the interest of the clergymen of all denominations to such a degree, that every James O'Neill audience can be distinguished by the unusual large number present of gentlemen dressed in black cloth. Although many melo-dramas have been written since Mr. Alexander Dumas first put "Monte Cristo" before the literary public of this and other countries. No story was ever conceived that so thoroughly embodies the characteristic of a romantic melo-drama in the true sense of the word. Monte Cristo remains a melo-drama, but it is an exceptional one. It is in one sense an extravaganza; but its extravagance is the license of true romance, where the yard-stick of human probability must always fall short. Pulchritude as it does in every fibre, with life and action, it is not strange that it should continue to rivet the attention of all those who yield themselves to its charm. The large company supporting Mr. O'Neill during his first visit at the Sleeper Opera House on Wednesday, May 16 is fully up to the standard and includes among others, Miss Lillian Daily. This young lady is said to possess a positively ravishing appearance, with all the characteristics of a Southern beauty, and she enjoys the reputation of being an actress who is not only intelligent and pains-taking, but very fascinating. Miss Kate Fletcher, who for seven years has played the part of Garouste is also in the company. Among the gentlemen are Mr. George A. D. Johnson, a well known character actor, Wm. Pascoe, a clever juvenile leader, Franklin Aallett, for several seasons with the Boston Stock Museum and other artists of equally high standing.

A Little Daughter

Of a Church of England minister cured of a distressing rash, by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mr. Richard B. McKill, St. Paul, P. Q. says: "I have used Ayer's Family Medicine for 40 years, and have heard nothing but good of it. I know of many."

Wonderful Cures

performed by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, one in particular being that of a little daughter of a Church of England minister. The child was literally covered from head to foot with a red and exceedingly troublesome rash, from which she had suffered for two or three years, in spite of the best medical treatment available. Her father was in great distress about the case, and, at last, began to administer Ayer's Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which effected a complete cure, much to her relief and her father's delight. I am sure, were he here today, he would testify to the strongest terms as to the merits of

LETTER FROM PARIS.

Written by T. R. Congdon to His Relatives and friends in America.

Having been up all night we were very sleepy. Sunday morning we arose at 9:30 somewhat rested but missed our "coffee." As I said breakfast is from 10 to 12 and it was about

12 when we were ready to go to the salon. Imagine our surprise when we were told that it was too late for breakfast. I showed my watch, it

said 11:50. "Ah, but don't you see"

said the steward, "we are losing"

minutes every day as we are trying to stand up you must set your watch

ahead 40 minutes every day at noon,

it is now 12:30. As we were the

victims of a mistake we were duly

served with "bananas," which they call

breakfast. We notice that holders

are in use this morning to hold the

dishes on the table. The edge of the plates are turned up two inches and holders for bottles and glasses are

things such as vinegar, mustard etc.

Wines are free on the French steam-

ers.

This is Monday, a quiet Christmas.

The salon is decorated with evergreens

and two Christmas trees, one of long table together with all the flowers that were sent to passengers by friends previous to sailing. According to custom I gave my steward the chief of the boat as well as myself. If we have a dictionary and when we get

"cornered" we refer to our friend—the dictionary. From him I learn that the captain's salary is $7,000 a year.

The chief engineer's 5,000. These men have absolutely nothing to do and can sleep all the time if they care to,

but of course all the responsibility is on their shoulders. There are four engineers and four midshipmen engineers.

The first class has 60 staterooms, 10

cabins, making the number of passengers on board our ship 510. I was interested to know our steamer burns

1500 tons of coal crossing the ocean,

at least that is the amount the engineers are allowed to burn. If the weather is fine and the engineers are

"economy," as my friend called it in his broken English, they burn less.

The company pays the price of the 300 tons, if they burn 200, it is paid for four engines and it is divided between them, coal being $2.50 per ton.

On the other hand if they burn more than the allowance they pay the company out of their salary.

A move is on foot to give a grand concert this Christmas evening in the salon and I am invited to play on my guitar. There are several fine musicians on board and I prefer to listen

with a determination to be well

Adia goes to eat Christmas dinner

which was to say the least my first grand. There were twelve courses. I quote from Adia's diary. "Imagine my disappointment at the long long face when after being served three courses, I was obliged to leave the other nine to Tom and without waiting to fold my napkin I left for my little bunk to remain there the rest of the day."

At dinner the contents of the Christmas trees were distributed to the passengers, each receiving a paper cap

and a motto in French. I lost mine.

All donated their paper caps to the girls and boys and a merry crowd it was.

Shall I tell you about the night watch? As I lay in my cosy bunk and the old ship plowed along through the dark deep, I cannot help thinking of the danger which may befall us

On Tuesday a bill was introduced

in the senate by Mr. Washburn granting the right of way to the Brainerd

and Northern Minnesota railroad through the Leech Lake Indian reservation.

The republican state convention has been called to be held at St. Paul on July 11. According to the basis of representation of one for every 200

votes cast for Harrison in 1893 Crow

Wing county will be entitled to ten delegates.

It is stated by an exchange that the reason the ladies of Kansas did not register more numerous at the late elections was because the new ballot

law of that state provides that the lower limbs of the voter from the floor to the knees must be visible from the outside of the voting booth. It is stated, however, that this provision

did not deter Mary Ellen Leese from casting her ballot.

So are We, But.

The Union is in favor of holding the Republican congressional convention in Brainerd. Brainerd is a Republican town, it is central and has ample hall and hotel accommodations.—Princeton Union.

State Firemen's Meeting.

The annual convention of the state

firemen's association will convene in Minneapolis on June 12, 13 and 14.

This is the 23rd annual meeting of the association. Rates on all railroads have been secured at one and one third fare. Each company is entitled to two delegates and the chief of each department is entitled to a seat in the convention as a delegate at large.

The topic given to the Brainerd department is:

"The importance of a close co-operation between the underwriters and the members of fire departments, particularly in the investigation of the causes of fires from the standpoint of losses." Minneapolis, Pipe-

stone, North St. Paul, Brainerd, Alton, Rush, City.

Delegates have been elected from different companies as follows:

Recently during a heavy storm a vest containing a gold watch that was lost in Bowery Bay by Ald. Smith last summer was washed ashore.

Clement Scott is a famous English dramatic critic, and his praise of Jim Corbett's acting is, doubtless, based on the latter's numerous "hits."

In Algeria there is a river of ink, two branches of the stream rising in ground impregnated with iron and gallic acid, the two principal ingredients of ink.

Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Charlemagne and Napoleon are regarded as having done more for the advancement of civilization than any other great soldiers.

The people of Lisbon are trying to prevent the cholera scare among foreign tourists by reporting their cholera cases as cholerae. That is an old trick that won't work this season.

Fish balance themselves in water by the muscular contraction of the air bladders. At death the muscles relax and the air bladders expand with the result that the fish is thrown on one side and rises to the surface.

Zola says that hereafter his writings will be chaste. He has exposed the mire of life and now wishes to consider its beauties. In the language of ward politics, Zola is simply "plugging" for election to the French academy.

Considerable humor has, in the past, been created by the romantic fiction concerning a man who stole a saw mill. But recent purloining of freight trains in the woolly West brings one face to face with gigantic possibilities.

A woman has been drawn by mistake, on a jury in Rockford, Ill., and insists on serving. Here's luck to the fair pioneer, and may the unreasonable men on the jury finally come to her way of thinking.

Gen. Lew Wallace and Gen. Black want congress to name twenty-five "immortals." Why hoodoo twenty-five of the best men in American literature, science, humanitarianism and statesmanship by affixing such a fossil non-claudature to them?

No wonder the ladies did not register very numerously in Kansas at the late municipal elections. The new ballot law of that state provides that the lower limbs of the voter, from the floor to the knees, must be visible from the outside of the voting booth.

Magician Hermann is to give a benefit next week in Chicago for the benefit of the family of Ben King, the Michigan poet and humorist, author of "Should Die Tonight." The benefit will be a "hummer" as orders for boxes and seats at a premium are coming in by every mail.

The chief element of weakness in the woman suffrage movement in New York is the fact that only a small percentage of the women of the state have taken judicial notice of the fact "cause" is at a disadvantage in that it has to play against spring nullifiers and tergivers in dress gowns.

Another man has been shot and killed for singing "After the Ball." The jury called it an investigation of the affair, and the verdict of justifiable homicide. This may seem a desperate remedy, but it must be remembered that the disease is desperate as well.

That there is virtue in the Pasture treatment for hydrophobia is fully demonstrated by the fact that last year forty persons were treated for the disease, only six of whom died. These facts have set at rest the carplings of the incredulous, and have given a surprise to the scientific world.

In the opinion of many Senator Vance was the greatest wit the senate has known since John A. Andrew. He entertained the cloak rooms with enough good nature to make a book of. Geniality characterized his private life and he had almost no enemies. There are records of Carolina children who bear his name in token of the esteem in which their fathers held him.

A "crescent push cart," consisting of a small portable chapel, containing an organ and chairs, and made so that the side may be let down as a platform, is the latest religious invention. The invention is unfortunate on one account, because before long every candidate for office will go about with his pony and campaign cart, making cat lectures on every corner.

Money on call loans may now be obtained at lower rates than ever before since the war. The banks have money that they can use—money that is unproductive and therefore a bar to the bank's credit. The banks have money at almost any rate of interest, but the security for the principal is good. New York banks last week showed deposits of $5,314,700 as against loans of $1,832,200.

A woman in Huntington, Ind., caught a "Peping Tom" looking in at the windows of a neighbor's house one evening. Drawing a bead on him with her son's trusty air rifle she filled his anatomy full of hot slugs with little red feathers on them. Women are getting more and more resourceful every day, and for catching lurching loafers and peeping gazers they are getting to be more than matches for the men.

Mrs. Clotilda Hohenberg, who died in St. Paul, Minn., a few days ago, was the youngest of the eighteen children of Leonard von Hohenberg, chief justice of the royal court of appeals of Bavaria, and her mother was a member of one of the oldest and best families of Germany. She went to St. Paul in 1881 and accumulated some property, but she lost it through illness and for some years past supported herself by peddling papers on the city.

A gold medal awarded to Frederick E. Ives of Philadelphia, by the Photographic Society of that city, for his achievements in colored photography, will be formally presented at a reception to be given him next Wednesday evening upon his return from London. Mr. Ives has received many honors from scientific bodies while abroad.

His system, it will be remembered, consists of the use of three pictures of the same subject, obtained through glass of different colors and then exhibited through similar color screens in such way as to unite them in one. "Composite heliochromy" is his name for it.

WEALERS ARE GUILTY

COXEY AND HIS TWO LIEUTENANTS ARE CONVICTED.

They were declared guilty of Disobeying a Banner and Treading on the Grass About the Capitol—They Will Take an Appeal.

Washington, May 5.—Jacob S. Coxey and his lieutenant, Carl Browne and Christopher Columbus Jones, were star attractions in the district police court where they were arraigned to trial on the capital grounds case on May 1.

The court room was filled with spectators. The judge, Judge Miller, presiding, a notable part of the assembly. Attorneys Hyman and Lipscomb appeared for the defendants in the preliminary proceedings. The judge issued the constitutionality of the law under which their clients were arrested.

McClellan, however, overruled the objections of counsel for the defense to the information, the judge holding that the capitol grounds act was constitutional. He then denied Coxey a special trial. The trial may end this evening.

It looks as though social notoriety is not to be the fate of one Washington woman whose name for some inscrutable reason for the last half-dozen years has been omitted from all published accounts of gatherings in which she has taken part. An overmastering emotion, which she has never admitted in investigation into the matter, says the Post. She then found that, so far from the omission having been intentional, she had been the victim of a gross error, arising from the fact that she was personally unknown even by sight to them. Having satisfied herself on this point, she was accordingly shortly thereafter ordered to get a carriage, and calling for a friend, took her for a drive. The little excursion was planned for a short time, but the weather was so atrocious, as the horses, taking fright, ran away and getting beyond the control of the coachman, that the party was obliged to dismount, each ladies injured, the owner of the carriage injured seriously. In the midst of her pain as she was being carried to her home, she thought of the error, and thought that the runaway would be given space in the papers. Then, as the time-out was her property, she called on the publisher of the paper to get the account. The following morning a detailed account of the accident appeared in the paper, and she was surprised to find that for so long ruled her elimination from print, her name was not mentioned. That of her companion was mentioned, and she was surprised to find which wound up by stating that "a friend who was at the carriage at the time was also injured."

Some young men there were, and only in one of the Southern capital cities not only wore decollete ball dresses at 80, but actually possessed the lovely neck and arms which they required. She was most innocently vain, and no wonder, for she was famous for her beauty. Her beauty was not varied her charms far above those of the young and more beautiful virgins. She had a certain grace, a preparing, a staidness, which our select society of old women, with their multitudinous engagements, would find difficult to combine. She was a woman who would appear in full regalia she would take a brisk walk and return in time for her dinner. She was a woman who remained quiet with her work until about 3 or 4 o'clock, when she would retire to her room. She was a woman who, under perspiration, and return in her sparkling of some light refreshment at the tea hour, and then she would go up, take a bath and make the most choice toilet. All the house-hold required of her was to be a woman of solemn rites, and would never have dreamed of laughing at them or interfering with them. Her life was a triumph, her appearance was a triumph, her influence to excite the greatest admiration and adulation. — New York Ledger.

The Study of Manners.—Dr. Green, the president of Elmhurst College, has suggested a rather novel study in the curriculum—a systematic study of manners. A representative committee of all the college classes has been formed, styled the Council of Etiquette. The aim is by studying the manners of the ancients and the moderns on all disputed points. No colloquial code of manners will do, but the student must be able to "do" the culture code all over the world.

Every two weeks some member of the council presents some original idea, and the council discusses it with the students. The subjects are varied, the first one being "Manners in Public Places." The next will be "Manners in a scholarly way." Other essays are on "Chaperones and Letter Writing," "How to Get to Stay and What to Avoid," etc.

The movement seems to be a good one, and which will help the college girl to attain the modest and dignified bearing that she will be expected to have as a graduate.

The best characteristic of Lord Tobery is the least known and it is so of which I hesitate to write. It you, however, be a wrong to the public to refrain from calling attention to the fact that although Lord Rosebery does not lead his life in this particular direction, he is much dominated by the religious instinct as Mr. Gladstone himself. No one is more conscientious among his class in this particular. He is not one, not Mr. Gladstone himself, scrutinizes more closely the moral aspects of all his policies and all his actions. He is not one, not Mr. Gladstone himself, who is more of a conventional ecclesiastical Christian in his day. I do so far as fearing God and working for the good of his fellow-men. He dwells so much in their taskmaster as the young peer upon whom I descended the mantle of Mr. Gladstone. I do not see that Mr. Gladstone's "Three English Liberal Leaders," in the Review of Reviews.
